Slide 1: Title Slide

- Title: FLORÉA NATURAL BEAUTY DIGITAL MARKETING STRATEGY

- Visual: Center the main title in deep purple. Use the Floréa logo or banner image as the central background or header element.

Slide 2: Project Idea

- Heading: Project Idea

- Content: * The project's concept is based on capitalizing on the growing trend towards using natural and safe skincare and haircare products by implementing a comprehensive marketing for an existing natural beauty brand.

Slide 3: Vision & Business Goals

- Heading: Vision & Business Goals

- Content:
  - To capitalize on the growing market trend of safe, natural skin and hair care by promoting Floréa's high-quality, handmade Egyptian products.

  - To build a strong, trusted brand presence in the Egyptian natural skincare market, expand the customer base, and ultimately increase market share and sales conversions.

Slide 4: Unique Selling Point (USP)

- Heading: Unique Selling Point (USP)

- Content:
  - Floréa stands out by offering products that deliver immediate, visible results (verified by authentic customer testimonials) packaged in a highly professional, elegant, and gift-ready visual identity that outshines competitors' simpler branding.

Slide 5: Initial Marketing Overview

- Heading: INITIAL MARKETING OVERVIEW

- Content:
  - The beauty industry is shifting toward safe, natural, and chemical-free skincare and hair care.
  - In this competitive market, brands that use authentic, therapeutic ingredients stand out most.
  - Floréa is an Egyptian natural cosmetics brand offering high-quality handmade products with a refined visual identity.
  - Its marketing strategy taps into the clean beauty trend by educating customers, building trust through transparent reviews, and using strong visual content to position the brand as a premium option for personal care and gifting.

Slide 6: Marketing Channels Overview

- Heading: Marketing Channels Overview
- Content:
  - Hand-made natural cosmetics in Egypt should use an omnichannel approach that combines digital discovery, social selling, e-commerce, and selective offline presence.
  - The market is driven by growing interest in natural ingredients, clean beauty, and safer alternatives to synthetic products, especially among younger and urban consumers.
  - Main channels:
    - Social media platforms: Instagram, Facebook, TikTok
    - Direct selling channels: WhatsApp and Messenger
    - Online stores and beauty e-commerce platforms
    - Offline retail: beauty shops, pharmacies, supermarkets, and hypermarkets
    - Physical events: bazaars, exhibitions, and pop-up markets
  - Key message: The strongest path is social-first marketing supported by direct chat selling and trusted product trial points offline.

Slide 7: Services Offered

- Heading: Services Offered

- Content:
  - Hand-made natural cosmetics brands in Egypt usually compete through product authenticity, natural ingredients, and personalized care solutions rather than mass-market scale.

  - Services should focus on both product value and customer experience.

  - Suggested services offered:

    - Natural skincare products, such as creams, masks, scrubs, and body lotions

    - Natural haircare products using plant-based ingredients

    - Handmade soaps and body care products based on oils, herbs, and botanical extracts

    - Customized product recommendations for different skin and hair needs

    - Gift boxes, seasonal bundles, and special occasion packaging

    - Customer support through WhatsApp, Instagram, and Facebook for consultation and ordering

  - Key message: The offer should highlight natural ingredients, handmade quality, local identity, and safe everyday use.

Slide 8: Marketing Channels Examples

- Heading: Marketing Channels Examples

- Content:
  - Different channels play different roles in building awareness, trust, trial, and sales for handmade natural cosmetics in Egypt.

  - Examples:

        - TV ads: Useful for mass awareness, but expensive and less practical for small handmade brands
        - Digital marketing: The most effective option for targeting beauty-conscious consumers through Instagram, Facebook, TikTok, SEO, influencer marketing, and online ads
        - Events: Bazaars, handmade exhibitions, women-focused shopping events, and pop-ups help customers test scent, texture, and product quality before buying
        - Billboards: Can support local visibility in high-traffic urban areas, but they work better for established brands than for startups
    - Best-fit conclusion: For this market, digital marketing and events are the most suitable channels because they offer better targeting, lower cost, and stronger trust-building than TV ads or billboards.

Slide 9: Foundation of Marketing

- Heading: Foundation of Marketing
- Content:
    - The marketing foundation for handmade natural cosmetics in Egypt should start with clear positioning, customer understanding, and trust-building communication.
    - Buyers are looking for products that feel natural, safe, effective, and locally authentic.
    - Core foundation elements:
        - Target audience: Young and middle-income women, skincare-conscious buyers, and consumers seeking natural and chemical-free alternatives
        - Customer need: Safe, natural, handmade cosmetics that support skin and hair health
        - Value proposition: Egyptian handmade products with natural ingredients, local identity, and personalized care
        - Brand message: Natural, safe, authentic, and trustworthy
        - Main goal: Build awareness, encourage first trial, and convert loyal repeat customers through digital and community-based channels

- The marketing foundation should connect product quality, emotional trust, and digital accessibility to create a strong local beauty brand in Egypt.

Slide 10: Situation Analysis

- Heading: Situation Analysis

- Content:
  - Florea operates in a growing Egyptian beauty market where consumers are becoming more interested in natural, organic, and safer personal care products.

  - The category is supported by rising awareness of ingredient safety, stronger social media influence, and demand for authentic local brands.

  - Key points:

    - Egypt beauty and personal care market reached USD 1,961.1 million in 2025.

    - Natural cosmetics demand is rising due to clean beauty and concern about synthetic chemicals.

    - Social media is a major buying influence, with 45.40 million social media users in Egypt as of January 2024.

    - Florea is still a new brand with a smaller audience, so growth depends on stronger visibility, regular posting, and trust-building content.

  - Florea has market potential, but it competes in a fast-growing category where stronger digital consistency is needed to stand out.

Slide 11: Market Research

- Heading: Market Research

- Content:
  - The market for handmade natural cosmetics in Egypt is driven by women and younger consumers who prefer natural ingredients, safe formulas, and eco-friendly products.

  - Demand is strongest in skin care and hair care, especially for products linked to self-care, sensitive skin, and daily wellness.

- Main findings:
  - Consumers increasingly prefer natural and organic beauty products in Egypt.
  - Younger demographics are more likely to respond to influencer content and social media recommendations.
  - Growth opportunities exist in anti-aging, sensitive skin, and personalized solutions.
  - Egyptian consumers are also influenced by local ingredients and authenticity, which supports handmade brands.
- The research shows a strong fit between Florea's handmade natural positioning and current consumer preferences in Egypt.

Slide 12: Industry Overview

- Heading: Industry Overview
- Content:
  - Egypt's beauty and personal care industry is expanding steadily, supported by urbanization, changing lifestyles, higher beauty awareness, and stronger digital commerce adoption.
  - Natural cosmetics represent a promising niche within this broader market because they align with clean beauty and wellness trends.
  - Industry highlights:
    - Egypt beauty and personal care market is forecast to grow to USD 3,233.5 million by 2034.
    - Social media platforms such as Instagram, Facebook, and YouTube are important for product discovery and brand loyalty.
    - Skin care remains one of the strongest growth areas in the market.
    - Consumers are shifting toward a "skin-first" mindset and more natural daily-use products.

- The industry environment is favorable for Florea, especially if the brand focuses on skincare-led growth and digital engagement.

Slide 13: Competitive Analysis

- Heading: Competitive Analysis

- Content:
  - Florea currently competes with stronger and more established natural cosmetics brands on Facebook, especially Ashry Natural and Nefertari Minya.

  - These competitors outperform Florea in audience size, posting frequency, reviews, and engagement, which gives them a stronger position in the consideration and decision stages of the buyer journey.

  - Florea's competitive gap is not in product identity, but in reach, consistency, and content strategy.

(Visual Note: Insert the following table on this slide or as Slide 13b to ensure it is legible.)

Slide 14: PESTEL Analysis

- Heading: PESTEL Analysis

- Content:
  - Florea's market is affected by political, economic, social, technological, environmental, and legal factors that shape how natural cosmetics are produced, promoted, and sold in Egypt.

  - PESTEL points:

    - Political: Government policies support regulation, safety, and quality control in cosmetics.

    - Economic: A growing beauty market creates opportunity, but consumers may still be price-sensitive and compare value carefully.

    - Social: Clean beauty, natural living, and wellness trends are increasing interest in handmade cosmetics.

    - Technological: Social media and e-commerce are essential tools for reaching and converting buyers.

    - Environmental: Eco-friendly products, sustainable ingredients, and reduced chemical use match consumer values in the category.

        - Legal: Cosmetic products in Egypt are subject to EDA rules, product registration, ingredient disclosure, Arabic labeling, and compliance requirements.

    - PESTEL analysis shows strong market opportunity, but success depends on legal compliance and smart digital execution.

(Note: Slide 15 was not included in the original document sequence).

Slide 16: SWOT Analysis

- Heading: SWOT Analysis

- Content:
    - Florea has a good brand base and category fit, but still needs stronger consistency and visibility to compete with better-established natural cosmetics brands.

    - SWOT points:

        - Strengths: Handmade natural positioning, trust, clarity, professional photos, consistent visual identity.

        - Weaknesses: Low audience size, irregular posting, limited engagement, and a new-brand status.

        - Opportunities: Growing demand for natural beauty in Egypt, increasing influence of social media, and rising preference for local and authentic products.

        - Threats: Established competitors with larger audiences, stronger content strategies, and better awareness in the market.

    - Florea's opportunity is strong, but it must improve content consistency, audience growth, and brand visibility to compete effectively.
